General Guild Will Support Hospital Levy

Berger Hospital's General Guild has voiced its support of the tax levy calling for expansion and improvement of facilities at the hospital.

The General Guild offered its endorsement on behalf of all the various Berger Guilds it represents.
The General body also has volunteered to assist the Circleville Junior Chamber of Commerce in promoting the expansion issue.

The hospital levy is due for a special election in the city and county on Sept. 24. The Jaycees have undertaken to support the program as a community project.

To run for a period of five years
the levy will be similar to the one that was defeated in the last November election. The proposal, if accepted at the Sept. 24 polls, would provide about $900,000 for an overall building project and expansion of facilities.

The General Guild's move to support the hospital levy in September is a renewal of the stand taken last year by the organization.
Many other business and civic bodies also supported the measure. It is hoped by Jaycees members these groups will reaffirm their support this year.

Cincy Orders Controversial Water Wells

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati officials have awarded a contract for well-drilling in the still-controversial Ross field in adjoining Butler County.

The contract went Thursday to Moody's of Dayton, Inc., a Vandalia firm that took the contract over six rivals with a bid of $54, 946.

Moody's is to drill three production wells, each with a four million gallon capacity daily. The firm will also put down 17 exploratory test holes and 2 temporary observation wells.

The action came one day after three directors were named to head the new Butler County Water Conservancy District, which won court jurisdiction over three county townships, including the area of the proposed Cincinnati wells.
Cincinnati's purchase of a 400-acre farm near Ross touched off controversy last year. Hamilton officials claimed it was close to their city well field and would menace water supplies all over the area.

Cincinnati officials asserted
there was plenty of water in the area.

Cincinnati water works officials say much of the expected water from Ross will go to suburban Hamilton County customers.

Union, Ford OK New Agreement

CHICAGO (AP) — Settlement of a strike in the Chicago Heights, Ill., Ford Motor Co. plant which idled more than 30,000 workers in five states was announced jointly today by the company and the United Auto Workers Union.

The strike of 3,750 UAW members at the Chicago Heights stamping plant which began Aug.
15 was resolved by settlement of all 74 grievances which were the cause of the walkout, the officials said.

Local 588 of the union agreed to stop picketing immediately and preparations were begun at once for reopening of the closed plant which supplies body panels for all Ford passenger cars except Lincoln Continentals.

Pogo Stick Accident Is Fatal to Girl, 10

Janet Sue Wells, 10, was killed Thursday in a fall while bouncing on a pogo stick.

She fell on a wheel and axle that had come off a toy wagon.
The axle penetrated her jugular vein.

Westfall School Construction Moving Along on Schedule

WESTFALL SCHOOL — The maze of steel at the right of the picture will be the gymnasium of the new Westfall School. The steel reinforcing pillars will be removed after the concrete roof is poured. The entire building is slated to be under roof by winter. The area just to the left of the gymnasium will be the school auditorium.

Construction of the new Westfall High School at Pherson is moving along on schedule, it was announced today by George McDowell, superintendent of county schools.

Estimated cost of the building is $1,406,959. This averages out to about $14 per square foot when the building is completely finished, according to the architect's estimate.

McDowell pointed out, however, that alternatives presented in the contract could make the figure vary slightly either way. He anticipates the per square foot price will be slightly high.

Although the building is scheduled to be completely under roof by winter, McDowell feels it will not be ready for occupancy until the 1964-65 school term.

Another Rescue Drill Is Close to Trapped Miners

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP)—David Fellin, 58, and Henry Throne, 28,
two of the trapped coal miners, reported in excited shouts today that it seemed to them the 12-inch escape hope appeared about to be drilled into their chamber where they have been trapped 331 feet underground for 10 days. It would take another 30 hours more, at least, to get them out.

Rescue workers slowed the drilling rig to almost a crawl as it began to bring up dust indicating to the experts it was on soft rocks, normally right over a vein of coal.

A third man, Louis Bova, 42, is trapped some distance from the others and has not been reported for several days.

"Let us know the first signs of dust or anything," the man handling communications from the surface told them via a microphone through the six-inch lifeline hole. "Keep track of it and tell us when to stop."

"We will," replied Fellin.

Two previous escape hole tries have failed, the latest one Thursday.

If all goes well, the 12-inch drill was expected to break through around mid-afternoon.
Drilling slowed to avoid any possibility of a new cave-in.

After the 12-inch hole is completed, the next step will be to enlarge it to 17 inches. This probably will take another 30 hours.
The first mechanical breakdown caused workers to lose an hour's time. This occurred when a packing bolt broke loose on the drill ing rig.

Drilling resumed at 4 a.m. and continued for another hour, reaching 220 feet, when the hoise cable jumped the pulley.

Optimism prevailed for at least two of the men. The fat of the third, separated from his companions by a wall of debris and without food since the cave-in Aug. 13, remained uncertain. A Navy physician at the scene said his chances are pretty slim.

A diamond bit began shortly after midnight drilling a three-to-four-inch hole toward where the third miner, Louis Bova, 42, is believed to be in hopes of contacting him by lowering an ultra-sensitive microphone.

On the third front, specialists with radioactive material rushed in from all over the nation, stood ready to make further probes to determine how close a previous 12-inch hole came to Fellin and Throne.

Initial efforts with a Geiger counter Thursday failed to disclose the distance.

Lt. Richard Anderson, of the Naval Medical Research Institute in Bethesda, Md., a physician well-versed in survival techniques, gave advice to Fellin and Throne early today.

He said, "As long as there's food, water and hope, they're going."

Lockbourne Manpower Slash Coming

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Information in a published report—saying among other things that Lockbourne Air Force Base will have an almost 50 per cent manpower reduction by mid-1966 — essentially is correct, Strategic Air Command said today.

There were no indications as to job classifications that would be effected by the manpower reduction. However, it is expected personnel in the Circleville and Pickaway County area will be included in the cut since both military and civilian personnel from this area are employed at the base.

A story in the weekly newspaper "Air Force Times," which is not an official Air Force publication, said a personnel cut from about 8,150 to 4,175 is planned for the big Strategic Air Command base south of Columbus.

The base, built during World War II, has two wings of E47s, special electronic countermeasure versions of the six-jet medium bomber which is approaching obsolescence. This has given rise to rumors in the past that changes are in store for the installation.

Lockbourne's information office in response to a query by The Associated Press, said Strategic Air Command headquarters at Omaha, Neb., had this comment:
"The information is essentially correct. However, Air Force plans are under continuous review to insure the most effective use of base facilities to meet changing defense needs. It is for this reason that planning actions affecting individual bases normally are announced about 90 days in advance of the effective date."

Binding Arbitration Bill May Stall Rail Strike

News Briefs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov.
James A. Rhodes drove a tractor-powered shuttlebus at the state fair today, taking a gang of youngsters for a tour of the grounds.

Among his passengers were Mrs. Rhodes and daughters Saun-dra and Sharon. Another daughter, Suzanne, couldn't make the first day of the 110th annual exposition—she's taking final exams at Ohio State University.

As the governor pulled the shuttlebus to a halt before the Youth Center, Mrs. Rhodes said:
"He drives that tractor better than he does a car."

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—To show sympathy with the civil rights march in Washington next Wednesday, hundreds of Akron families may fly the American flag at their homes on that day.

The flag-flying idea first was proposed here in a letter to the Akron Beacon Journal from seven members of a civil rights study group at the Cuyahoga Falls First Congregational Church. Their letter said that since they would not be able to join in the demon-fly flags to show their opposition to "the immorality of racism."

CANTON, Ohio (AP)—Negotia-

a guaranteed annual wage proposal, although the company had closed the gap somewhat from its previous offer.

Bargaining on a new offer covmidnight tonight.

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—The city of Utilities Commission chairman, as a special counsel in its utility rate cases.

Mayor Edward O. Erickson, in

Miss McGovern, 36, will work for rate case. The rest of her time will be devoted to her private law practice in Akron, the mayor said.

Talk of Violence Plagues Viet Nam

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—South Viet Nam's capital was alive with rumors of general strikes, Buddhist suicides and street fights today but conditions appeared quiet with the army in complete control.

Armored cars and tracked vehicles flanked the highway as U.S.
Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, arriving to take up his post, was driven into the city Thursday night.

Lodge was expected to pay his first call on President Ngo Dinh Diem today and convey to him the U.S. government's angry disapproval of the crackdown this week on Buddhist opponents of Diem's regime. Diem is Roman Catholic.

Opposition to the anti-Buddhist action mounted in Diem's official family. Foreign Minister Vu Van Mau was reliably reported to have resigned in protest shaved his head in the fashion of a Buddhist monk and asked Diem's permission to make a religious pilgrimage to India.

He was the third Vietnamese diplomat to resign in protest against the crackdown.

An American official said he believed the crackdown, which started with a series of bloody raids on temple pagodas early Wednesday was instigated by Vietnamese generals.

"I don't believe the generals actually are in control," he said.
"The country definitely is still ruled by President Diem."

But there is a growing weight of evidence that it was on the generals' insistence the present crackdown and martial law were initiated.

There was no indication how long martial law would continue.
A curfew continued at right throughout the country. Military censorship also continued.

A traveler arriving from Dalat 140 miles northeast of Saigon reported he had seen troops fire on demonstrators. There was no indication of the number of casualties.

Student strikes were reported in various parts of the country including Saigon.

All pagodas remained sealed off
by troops and police.

Most of the monks arrested in the Saigon pagodas were being held in a military compound on the waterfront it was learned.
Estimates of their number run to 1000 or more.

U.N. To Hear Israel, Syria

UNITED NATIONS N. Y. (AP) — Israel and Syria square off in the UN Security Council today, each accusing the other of aggression.

The special council session had been set for Monday but was advanced at the insistence of Israeli Ambassador Michael Comay. He claimed Syrian guns shelled two Israeli settlements near the Syrian border Wednesday night.

Both Israel's and Syria's current complaints allege military aggression inside the demilitarized zone north of the Sea of Galilee. The zone is forbidden ground to all military forces under the 1949 armistice agreement between Israel and Syria, last of the Arab nations to stop fighting in the Palestine war.

Israel claims the area a sher-territory Syria contests the claim and accuses Israel of making "repeated attempts to annex this area by force."

Khush, Tito Leave

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev took off today for a roundabout trip to President Tito's Brioni Island hideaway and talks there with the Yugoslav leader.

Khrushchev, Tito and their wives flew south to Titograd, the capital of Montenegro.

From Titograd the party was to proceed west to the port of Kotor to board Tito's yacht for a two-day cruise northward along the Dalmatian coast to Brioni.

Senate Panel OKs Proposal

Vote Set Monday
As Deadline Looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Commerce Committee, working against a Thursday strike deadline, approved today a bill providing for binding arbitration to settle the deadlocked dispute over railroad work rules.

The bill, calling for the creation of a seven-man arbitration board, is to be taken up by the Senate Monday.

The board would be composed of two representatives of the carriers and two of the unions and of three public members designated by the other four unions, or, if they are unable to agree, appointed by the President.

The committee rejected President Kennedy's proposal for submitting the four-year-old dispute to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which would have been empowered to issue work rules binding for two years.

The bill follows the lines of a proposal made a week ago by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz for creation of an arbitration panel.

The bill, approved by the Commerce Committee without dissent, would bar a strike or walkout or the posting of new work rules, pending arbitration of the dispute.

The bill provides for referring to the arbitration board the two main issues in dispute—firemen's jobs and the make-up of train crews.

Collective bargaining would be attempted on other lesser issues in dispute, but if they could not be resolved by negotiation they also would be submitted to the board for arbitration.

The arbitration board would be required to begin its hearings 30 days after enactment of the legislation or at such earlier date as the parties and the board might agree upon.

The board would have to file its award not later than 60 days after it commenced its hearings, and in no event later than 90 days after enactment of the resolution.

Wirtz' proposal, accepted immediately without reservation by the five rail unions involved in the dispute, was to submit the two key issues to an arbitration panel composed of management, union and public representatives. Other issues, such as wage structure, would be left to separate negotiation.

The two parties, however, bogged down in trying to reach agreement on timing and procedures.

Magnuson said Thursday that whatever bill the committee brings out will reach the Senate floor Monday. He indicated also that he feels the bill can be passed in the Senate. Passage in the House may be more difficult, he indicated.

Actually, the House has before it a similar group of legislative proposals tailored to end the dispute, but leaders in that body are waiting for the Senate to act.

The rail dilemma was given back to Congress when the carriers and brotherhoods failed to agree on the final form of the arbitration proposal suggested by Wirtz.

The carriers want to eliminate some 32,000 firemen's jobs they say were made unnecessary by the adoption of diesel engines which do not use coal. The unions have protested that job cuts would hamper the safety and efficiency of train operations.

Hurricane Faces Seeding Experiment

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Beulah, with winds at the center up to 80 miles an hour, beat a path toward open seas today as scientists considered a series of unique seeding treatments to tame her destructive gales.

Cecil Gentry, director of the National Hurricane Research Project, said silver iodide crystals may be dropped into Beulah's mushrooming cloud formations.

The seeding, if successful, would soften Beulah's punch.

Her present course will carry the husky lady well north of all Caribbean land areas.

Cincy Orders Controversial Water Wells

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati officials have awarded a contract for well-drilling in the still-controversial Ross field in adjoining Butler County.

The contract went Thursday to Moody's of Dayton, Inc., a Vanalia firm that took the contract over six rivals with a bid of $54,946.

Moody's is to drill three production wells, each with a four million gallon capacity daily. The firm will also put down 17 exploratory test holes and 2 temporary observation wells.

The action came one day after three directors were named to head the new Butler County Water Conservancy District, which would court jurisdiction over three county townships, including the area of the proposed Cincinnati wells.

"We will," replied Fellin. Two previous escape hole tries have failed, the latest one Thursday.

If all goes well, the 12-inch drill was expected to break through around mid-afternoon. Drilling slowed to avoid any possibility of a new cave-in.

After the 12-inch hole is completed, the next step will be to enlarge it to 17 inches. This probably will take another 30 hours.

The first mechanical breakdown caused workers to lose an hour's time. This occurred when a packing bolt broke loose on the drill rig.

Drilling resumed at 4 a.m. and continued for another hour, reaching 220 feet, when the hoise cable jumped the pulley.

Optimism prevailed for at least two of the men. The fat of the third, separated from his companions by a wall of debris and without food since the cave-in Aug. 13, remained uncertain. A Navy physician at the scene said his chances are pretty slim.

A diamond bit began shortly after midnight drilling a three-to-four-inch hole toward where the third miner, Louis Bova, 42, is believed to be in hopes of contacting him by lowering an ultra-sensitive microphone.

On the third front, specialists with radioactive material rushed in from all over the nation, stood ready to make further probes to determine how close a previous 12-inch hole came to Fellin and Throne.

Initial efforts with a Geiger counter Thursday failed to disclose the distance.

Lt. Richard Anderson, of the Naval Medical Research Institute in Bethesda, Md., a physician well-versed in survival techniques, gave advice to Fellin and Throne early today.

He said, "As long as there's food, water and hope, they're good."

Mennonites Top Ohioan

KALONA, Iowa (AP) — The Mennonite General Conference has elected the Rev. Roy S. Koch of West Liberty, Ohio, as its moderator for the next two years.

Interest monthly and this would have increased the sum.

Another banking official said, "A reasonable estimate is that the money at least would have doubled to $1 million if put into a bank trust fund 18 years ago."

Another banker noted that if Altman had invested the money in stocks, and his investments had fared as well as the Dow Jones average which measures stock market movements, "the $500,000 today would be $2.5 million."

Meanwhile, a veteran employee of Altman's mill near Troy recalled that a section of timbers in the mill splintered about five years ago and some excavating had to be done to make repairs.

The work took five days and for the five full days, the elderly mill owner kept an eagle eye on the workmen.

Lockbourne Manpower Slash Coming

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Information in a published report—saying among other things that Lockbourne Air Force Base will have an almost 50 per cent manpower reduction by mid-1966 — essentially is correct, Strategic Air Command said today.

There were no indications as to job classifications that would be effected by the manpower reduction. However, it is expected persons in the Circleville and Pickaway County area will be included in the cut since both military and civilian personnel from this area are employed at the base.

A story in the weekly newspaper "Air Force Times," which is not an official Air Force publication, said a personnel cut from about 8,150 to 4,175 is planned for the big Strategic Air Command base south of Columbus.

The base, built during World War II, has two wings of E47s, special electronic countermeasure versions of the six-jet medium bomber which is approaching obsolescence. This has given rise to rumors in the past that changes are in store for the installation.

Lockbourne's information office in response to a query by The Associated Press, said Strategic Air Command headquarters at Omaha, Neb., had this comment: "The information is essentially correct. However, Air Force plans are under continuous review to insure the most effective use of base facilities to meet changing defense needs. It is for this reason that planning actions affecting individual bases normally are announced about 90 days in advance of the effective date."

The special council session had been set for Monday but was advanced at the insistence of Israeli Ambassador Michael Comay. He claimed Syrian guns shelled two Israeli settlements near the Syrian border Wednesday night.

Both Israel's and Syria's current complaints allege military aggression inside the demilitarized zone north of the Sea of Galilee. The zone is forbidden ground to all military forces under the 1949 armistice agreement between Israel and Syria, last of the Arab nations to stop fighting in the Palestine war.

Israel claims the area a sherr territory Syria contests the claim and accuses Israel of making "repeated attempts to annex this area by force."

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Robert F. Wagner has called a halt to the around-the-clock sit-in out side his City Hall office by civil rights demonstrators.

Wagner ordered the pickets out Thursday after a noisy melee in which three policemen were injured.

A dozen pickets ran up the City Hall steps and tried to chain themselves to a pillar at the entrance. Policemen prevented them from accomplishing a chain-in.

Policemen and pickets wrestled among clanking chains. Other demonstrators left a picket line on a nearby street and marched on City Hall, using fists and knees on policemen.

Binding Arbitration Bill May Stall Rail Strike

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes drove a tractor-powered shuttlebus at the state fair today, taking a gang of youngsters for a tour of the grounds.

Among his passengers were Mrs. Rhodes and daughters Sandra and Sharon. Another daughter, Suzanne, couldn't make the first day of the 110th annual exposition—she's taking final exams at Ohio State University.

As the governor pulled the shuttlebus to a halt before the Youth Center, Mrs. Rhodes said: "He drives that tractor better than he does a car."

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — To show sympathy with the civil rights march in Washington next Wednesday, hundreds of Akron families may fly the American flag at their homes on that day.

The flag-flying idea first was proposed here in a letter to the Akron Beacon Journal from seven members of a civil rights study group at the Cuyahoga Falls First Congregational Church. Their letter said that since they would not be able to join in the demonstration at the capital, they would fly flags to show their opposition to "the immorality of racism."

An American official said he believed the crackdown, which started with a series of bloody raids on temple pagodas early Wednesday was instigated by Vietnamese generals.

There was no indication how long martial law would continue. A curfew continued at night throughout the country. Military censorship also continued.

Talk of Violence Plagues Viet Nam

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — South Viet Nam's capital was alive with rumors of general strikes, Buddhist suicides and street fights today but conditions appeared quiet with the army in complete control.

Armored cars and tracked vehicles flanked the highway as U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, arriving to take up his post, was driven into the city Thursday night.

Lodge was expected to pay his first call on President Ngo Dinh Diem today and convey to him the U.S. government's angry disapproval of the crackdown this week on Buddhist opponents of Diem's regime. Diem is Roman Catholic.

Opposition to the anti-Buddhist action mounted in Diem's official family. Foreign Minister Vu Van Mau was reliably reported to have resigned in protest shaved his head in the fashion of a Buddhist monk and asked Diem's permission to take a religious pilgrimage to India.

Senate Panel OKs Proposal

As Deadline Looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Commerce Committee, working against a Thursday strike deadline, approved today a bill providing for binding arbitration to settle the deadlocked dispute over railroad work rules.

The bill, calling for the creation of a seven-man arbitration board, is to be taken up by the Senate Monday.

The board would be composed of two representatives of the carriers and two of the unions and of three public members designated by the other four unions, or, if they are unable to agree, appointed by the President.

The committee rejected President Kennedy's proposal for submitting the four-year-old dispute to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which would have been empowered to issue work rules binding for two years.

The bill follows the lines of a proposal made a week ago by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz for creation of an arbitration panel.

The bill, approved by the Commerce Committee without dissent, would bar a strike or walkout or the posting of new work rules, pending arbitration of the dispute.

The bill provides for referring to the arbitration board the two main issues in dispute—firemen's jobs and the make-up of train crews.

Collective bargaining would be attempted on other lesser issues in dispute, but if they could not be resolved by negotiation they also would be submitted to the board for arbitration.

The arbitration board would be required to begin its hearings 30 days after enactment of the legislation or at such earlier date as the parties and the board might agree upon.

The board would have to file its award not later than 60 days after it commenced its hearings, and in no event later than 90 days after enactment of the resolution.

Wirtz' proposal, accepted immediately without reservation by the five rail unions involved in the dispute, was to submit the two key issues to an arbitration panel composed of management, union and public representatives. Other issues, such as wage structure, would be left to separate negotiation.

The two parties, however, bogged down in trying to reach agreement on timing and procedures.

Magnuson said Thursday that whatever the committee brings out will reach the Senate floor Monday. He indicated also that he feels the bill can be passed in the Senate. Passage in the House may be more difficult, he indicated.

Actually, the House has before it a similar group of legislative proposals tailored to end the dispute, but leaders in that body are waiting for the Senate to act.

The rail dilemma was given back to Congress when the carriers and brotherhoods failed to agree on the final form of the arbitration proposal suggested by Wirtz.

The carriers want to eliminate some 32,000 firemen's jobs they say were made unnecessary by the adoption of diesel engines which do not use coal. The unions have protested that job cuts would hamper the safety and efficiency of train operations.

Hurricane Faces
Seeding Experiment

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Beulah, with winds at the center up to 80 miles an hour, beat a path toward open seas today as scientists considered a series of unique seeding treatments to tame her destructive gales.

Cecil Gentry, director of the National Hurricane Research Project, said silver iodide crystals may be dropped into Beulah's mushrooming cloud formations.

The seeding, if successful, would soften Beulah's punch. Her present course will carry the husky lady well north of all Caribbean land areas.

building will have a dome-shaped concrete roof over the gymnasium.

When the actual concrete pour is begun on the roof, it will be a round the clock operation until completed, according to the county superintendent.

The roofs over the remainder of the building will be the conventional built up type.

Much of the rough plumbing has already been completed. Contractor for the plumbing and heating is the Stockmeister firm of Jackson.

A gas fired, hot water system will heat the building.

Electrical contractor is the Berls Electrical Co. of Columbus. The general contract was let to the Knowlton Building Co.

THERE is already one well at the 49 acre school site and plans call for the drilling of a second. The two wells should provide a more than ample supply of water for the school.

The building will consolidate high school students from Williamsport, Darby, Monroe and Jackson.

The architects are Kellam and Foley.

ing to get along fairly well."

Anderson said the fact that Bova has been trapped without food or water for 10 days doesn't mean he's not alive.

"But his chances are pretty slim," he added.

H. Beecher Charnbury, state secretary of mines, said the larger drill was penetrating 35 feet an hour.

"We can go at a much faster rate now that we know the geological structure," he said.

He said he was "very optimistic" the third 12-inch hole would be a success.

"We were very disappointed with the hole we missed but we are glad that the men down there are keeping their spirits up. The failure (Thursday morning) was probably more of a disappointment to us than to them."

Already, unsuccessful efforts on the two previous 12-inch holes—the first of which had to be abandoned because it was too close to the men and caused secondary rock falls—resulted in the loss of more than 40 hours. The second 12-inch hole apparently missed the men by a few feet. They are in an underground pocket about 14 feet long and 9 feet wide.

Plans for the final rescue effort called for drilling a 12-inch hole and then reaming it to 17 inches and, if necessary, depending on the condition of the men and other factors, to 24.

Fellin and Throne continued to hold their spirits high with a stream of humor to rescuers above, boosting their morale.

Bova has not been heard from at all by rescuers at the surface.

Fellin reported he heard him Tuesday night and that he was in a weakened condition. Some mine experts in the rescue party, however, questioned Fellin's report.

East German Glad He Chose Freedom

KRUMBACH, Germany (AP)—Freedom was all Conrad Schumann wanted when he leaped from East to West Berlin over freshly strung barbed wire two years ago.

A picture of Schumann leaping the fence in the uniform of an East German border guard was printed on front pages. For many it became a symbol of daring to surmount any obstacle in the quest for a life of one's own choosing.

The photograph of Schumann was snapped by Peter Leibing of Contipress, Hamburg, and distributed by The Associated Press. It won prizes and press awards.

The prize Schumann got was freedom.

Did he get what he wanted? "Yes," he says firmly, "I am free now. I enjoy being out of East Germany and I wouldn't dream of going back unless the Communists go."

Schumann, 21 now and a father, works as a laborer at a bottling plant.

He was one of the first East German wall guards to defect after the Communists closed the 26-mile border cutting through the city. Schumann fled to West Berlin at 4 p.m. Aug. 15, 1961.

He says listening to West German radio stations and RIAS, the American radio station for Germans in Berlin, gave him an idea what life might be like in the West.

"When the Communists closed the border," Schumann recalls, "I decided to flee."

"That day I had gone on guard duty at 2 p.m. A group of West Berlin youths stood near the fence strung across the street. They shouted 'Come over, man. Come over.'"

"Then, I saw West Berlin police bring up a small Volkswagen truck and put it up in such a position that the open rear door was facing the barbed wire. One of the police motioned with his hand to indicate 'Jump in.' I nodded, quietly, so that nobody in the East would notice."

In a few strides, Schumann reached the fence, jumped over it and dashed toward the police truck. He jumped in, police closed the rear door and off the car roared.

West Berlin police handed Schumann over to military authorities of Berlin's French sector. They, in turn, passed him on to the Americans, who flew him to West Germany. At a refugee camp officials got him employment in a sanatorium at Guenzburg, near Ulm, in southern Germany. He met a nurse who became his wife.

With his wife and their 11-month-old son, Erich, Schumann lives in a three-room apartment. From his earnings of 500 marks—$125—a month the family has saved enough to buy furniture, a radio and television set. He hopes to buy a car soon.

AFL-CIO OK'd as Union In Chillicothe

CINCINNATI (AP)—The National Labor Relations Board recognized Thursday the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Workers (AFL-CIO) as the collective bargaining agent for a group of employees of the Mead Corp. of Chillicothe.

The order covered production, maintenance and technical service employees of the Chillicothe Division and construction employees of the construction division. Along with it, the NLRB ordered an election on Aug. 29 among technical associates, technologists technicians and others to determine their collective bargaining agent.

In both cases the Paper Mill Workers and Local 13811 of District 50 of the United Mine Workers have sought to be recognized.

The Mine Workers protested results of an election on June 20 covering the first group of employees. The NLRB upheld the results of the election which was in favor of the Paper Mill Workers. It involved more than 2,000 workers.

The election Aug. 29 will involve 100 employees.

Ex-AEC Aide Curious about Super Bomb

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dr. Willard F. Libby urged senators Thursday to determine whether Soviet possession of the 100-megaton bomb is a "commanding advantage" before voting on the limited nuclear test ban treaty.

Libby, professor of chemistry at the University of California in Los Angeles and a former member of the Atomic Energy Commission testified that he is "worried that we have not fired one and observed the effects which must be awful indeed."

"I think on the whole I probably would favor the treaty," he said. But before doing so he added he would "have to see the latest on the 100-megaton problem" and have reassurance that the treaty would not inhibit progress in the program for development of peaceful uses of atomic energy.

U.S. scientists and military men have told the senators that this country's policy has been to develop smaller weapons in the belief that there is no important practical advantage to a weapon of 100 megatons.

Close Parental Tab Helps Hike Student Work

KENT, Ohio (AP)—Youngsters whose parents keep close tab on them do better in school, according to a Kent State University study.

This was a major finding noted by James Evans of Franklin, Pa. in his master's degree thesis dealing with a group of selected fifth-grade pupils.

The 30-year-old clinical psychologist wanted to find out if there was any relationship between certain family, leisure-time and social variables and academic achievement.

"It is apparent that the mothers of the over-achievers in this study exert more control over their children than the mothers of under-achievers do," Evans reported.

He described mothers with much "control" as those who knew how their child used his leisure time and how much homework he had and did. She also was concerned about her child's reading habits, had mapped out his future and tended to be satisfied with his behavior.

Evans, who will receive a master of arts degree at Kent's 50th summer commencement Saturday, used 46 fifth-grade boys and girls with average and above average ability in his study.

What Joy in Being a Woman?

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — The thing that puzzles men most about women is that they enjoy being women.

Now and then a man, worn out with the office politics of earning a living, has a kind of masculine envy of his wife.

"You got it made, baby," he tells her. "When you get tired of pushing buttons on all these modern labor-saving devices, you can lie down on the couch and rest your worn finger."

"If you don't want to dust a table now, you can dust it later. If you don't feel like sending out the laundry today, you can send it out tomorrow."

"Boy, if I ever get the chance to be born again, I think I'd choose to be born a woman."

Actually, however, that is the last thing on earth he'd choose to be. A lion? Maybe. An elephant? Perhaps. But a woman? Never, never, never!

Now and then I discuss this subject with my wife.

"Tell the truth, Frances," I say to her. "If you had it to do all over again, wouldn't you rather be a man?"

"No indeed," she says. "Why?"

"Because it's more fun being a woman."

Fun? For the life of me I can't figure it out. Where's the fun? Admittedly, a man's life is full of woe. Every morning he has to shave and then decide which sock to put on first—and what necktie to wear. But after he gets these major decisions out of the way the rest of his day is fairly clear sailing.

He is no longer much of a bother to himself.

But a woman is a perpetual nuisance to herself all the hours she is awake.

She is never quite right. She has to endlessly adjust herself.

She is never at peace.

She is always straightening the seams of her stockings, tugging at her girdle, putting on lipstick, adjusting her hair, doing her fingernails, smoothing her dress, clipping her eyebrows, patting her chins to firm them, and anointing herself with lotions.

At least 50 times a day she has to look into a mirror to be sure she is still there—and pretend to be glad at what she sees therein.

Women have a lot of other problems. They can't scratch themselves in public. They have to be careful about crossing their legs.

But the worst of all ordeals about being a woman, to me at least, would be having to eat tuna salad for lunch day after day. But the girls seem to thrive on it.

"Just tell me one thing," I ask Frances. "What real joy could there possibly be in being a woman?"

"You'll never know," she says smugly.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP) — Another move to bring U.S. Treasury monetary policy closer in step with Federal Reserve credit management and with corporate financing needs will start next week.

Changing the present quarterly issues of one-year Treasury bills to a monthly offering seems at first glance like a routine matter of interest only to government security dealers.

But it could go well beyond that. It is further evidence of the important part monetary policy will play in meeting the problems that becloud the economic outlook.

The change to what the Treasury dubs "a more or less automatic turnover basis" might have a role in tackling the twin financial problems: curbing the outflow of gold and dollars abroad by firmer control over short-term loans and interest rates, and the simultaneous encouragement of economic growth at home through comparatively easy long-term credit.

This is a tricky task at best but one that the money managers see as ever more pressing.

The monthly bill offering is another in a string of monetary changes, in the last few months.

Early in the year the Federal Reserve began to tighten the short-term money market, if only by foregoing steps that would ease it. The result was a slow rise in yields of short-term securities, such as the 91-day bills and six-month bills the Treasury issues.

The aim, now acknowledged, was to make returns here look more attractive to those with idle funds which they had been shipping abroad where yields were higher. This added to the surplus of dollars in foreign hands, part of which were turned in from time to time for gold held by the U.S. Treasury.

Then a month ago the Federal Reserve went another step and raised its discount rate from 3 per cent to 3.5 per cent. This is what it charges member banks for loans which they in turn can use in making short-term loans to business.

Such hikes in the discount rate usually make all such borrowing a little more expensive, or at least a little harder to get.

Views on Television — Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Television viewers who complain about the sameness of series and the stereotyping of characters are invited by ABC to take a look at its new Monday night series, "The Outer Limits."

There they will encounter such unusual villains as inhabitants of another planet who appropriate six square blocks of an American community for experimental purposes; a foreign power that replaces the shoo-in candidate for the U.S. presidency with a double who is one of theirs; a magic machine that can see and hear everything going on within a five-mile area, and monsters by the car load.

The series will go several stops beyond Rod Serling's "Twilight Zone" on CBS which concentrates on the supernatural and the unexplainable. Like "Twilight Zone," it will play its monsters and the visitors from other planets straight.

Dropped into a 7:30 p.m. (EDT) time spot, the series obviously is expected to attract a youthful audience. Producer-writer Joseph Stefano, therefore, has been walking that narrow line which separates titillating entertainment from down-right scary stuff.

Stefano hopes to avoid parental complaints by creating monsters completely divorced from reality.

"Actually, I'd rather have my own 5-year-old see my monsters than a television show in which a bunch of black-jacketed hoods beat up somebody," he added.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

LEO DUROCHER reports that in one hotly contested ball game last summer, a rookie pitcher just brought up from the sticks, was hurriedly summoned from the bullpen.

Durocher told Shortstop Maury Wills, "This boy needs more warming up. When the ump signals 'Play ball,' make believe you've got something in your eye. It'll give the boy a chance to take a few more practice pitches."

Wills performed his part perfectly—so perfectly, in fact, that when he hollered, "Time out, please. I got something in my eye," the rookie pitcher came running over from the mound yelling, "Lemme get it out for you, Mr. Wills!"

Sandy McTavish (surely you remember him!) won two hundred thousand dollars with a sweepstakes ticket, and his friends were properly jubilant. Sandy asked, however, that they restrain themselves. "It wasn't as much as you lads seem to think," he cautioned them. "Remember that the ticket cost me five dollars."

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Painful conditions, such as a kidney stone or gall bladder colic, need strong medication for the patient's comfort. For years, morphine and similar drugs and chemicals have been used extensively to control the acute pain of many diseases, as well as for the aftermath of surgery.

Relief of pain is obtained with varying amounts of these drugs, depending on the weight and age of the patient. Always lurking maliciously in the mind, however, has been the fear that addiction comes readily to some people who require long and continued use of habit-forming drugs during their illness.

Patients sometimes become resistant to drugs and therefore require larger and larger amounts to control the pain. Obviously, this further increases the hazard of addiction.

The level of tolerance to drugs varies with the individual. For some people, moderate and controlled use of a drug for any sustained period is imperative. Others are better able to resist the dependence on drugs that are potentially addictive.

In an effort to avoid the patient's innocent addiction to narcotics, chemists have been assiduously seeking non narcotic pain killers. One such drug, a variation of the chemical meperidine, seems to hold a great promise.

Early trials have already shown it to be exceedingly effective for the relief of pain after surgery. Patients with rheumatism and arthritis have been given startling relief without unpleasant side effects. Studies on known drug addicts in Federal hospitals show no increase in their addiction.

This medical achievement will soon be an available reality that will give not only relief of pain but comforting assurance to the patient that his medication will not be habit-forming.

Recently, every physician in America received a letter from the Food and Drug Administration warning him against the overuse of a certain group of medicines for eye infections. The letter was clearly marked "Urgent" and indicated that it contained a drug warning.

Commissioner George P. Larrick had taken this immediate positive stand as soon as there was an indication that unsupervised use of these particular drugs was dangerous.

The Litany Is Familiar

By John Chamberlain

Anyone who writes a column gets letters from people who are convinced that the government of the United States — and the world, for that matter — is in the hands of conspirators. The litany is familiar: there is, supposedly, a group of Cne Worlders, bent on subjugating the U. S. to a UN that will be subservient, in its turn, to the Communist nations. The One Worlders are pictured as dominating the centers of power in both major U. S. political parties. They don't care who wins an election if it is a Roosevelt versus a Willkie, or an Eisenhower versus a Stevenson. But if an independent man like the late Robert Taft looms as a likely Presidential nominee, the forces of the "conspiracy" move into action at once to circumvent his success.

In its bald outlines the "conspiracy theory" won't wash: things don't happen because there is a mysterious High Command that pulls the strings to get a fore-ordained result. However, there is a more sophisticated theory that the American political system is dominated, not by a crude conspiracy, but by something called the Establishment, a sort of high level, honorable Mafia that reacts in knee-jerk fashion to keep things as they are for the benefit of those who have held positions of power and influence for a long time. The Establishment, according to this theory, doesn't want to hand the world over to the UN or to the Communists — but it believes in accommodation with the Communists through the UN. It just doesn't want to push issues, whether they affect the domestic economy or international politics, to show-downs. And it maintains itself, not by conspiratorial subversion, but by appealing to the Milquetoast that is in every contented or semicontent person.

Well, what about this Establishment? Is it a reality? When a "liberal" commentator, Richard Rovere, in a semi-serious, semi-mocking article, identified the members of the Establishment for anyone who will send him a self-addressed post card with a stamp, thinks Rovere was spoofing when he implied that he was spoofing. The Establishment, according to Buckley and Rovere, includes eastern bankers, the presidents of great universities, the editors of the Washington Post and the New York Times, most economists on the Harvard faculty, and three out of five big figures in Wall Street. Their influence supposedly moves, by the mysterious ways of money, into both of the big political organizations to make all important candidates "safe." And the "liberal" hierarchy among the writers is depicted as spreading incense as the Establishment's charades are acted out.

Discounting Rovere, however, no Establishment man has ever clearly admitted that there is any such thing as the Establishment. Or, rather, nobody ever admitted it before this month of August in 1963. The first clean-cut, fourteen - karat, Cadillac-powered admission by a presumed Establishment journalist that there is such a thing as an Establishment appears, rather coyly, in an article in the Saturday Evening Post for the week of August 24. The man who makes the admission is Stewart Alsop, and he does it in a column of commentary that is appended to his article on Barry Goldwater's Presidential chances for 1964.

Stewart Alsop thinks Goldwater has a chance of getting the Republican nomination if the public opinion polls, come next June, show that Kennedy will be a clear winner in November anyway. In other words, certain people in the Republican Party who have a veto power will not exercise it to head off Goldwater in a losing year. But if it ever should appear to be certain that Goldwater might actually beat Kennedy, the possessors of the Republican veto would not be so complacent.

Who possesses the power of veto in Republican ranks? Why, says Stewart Alsop, it is the Establishment. What is this Establishment? It is "the moderate-internationalist, old-money wing of the party." If it appears that Goldwater might take Kennedy, "the Establishment will marshal all its power to block his nomination. In the past that would have been enough. . . But there is no visible candidate to fit the miracle-man role of Willkie in 1940 and Eisenhower in 1952."

This isn't Robert Welch of the Birch society speaking of mysterious "liberal" manipulation of all the center of American political action. It isn't even that voice of non - conspiratorial conservative moderation, Bill Buckley. It is Stewart Alsop, a "liberal" of "liberals." And he does not add Rovere's disclaimer that his talk of an Establishment may all be a spoof.

So it appears, Virginia, that there is an Establishment after all. Don't say I said it. I am just passing Stewart Alsop's word along.

Good News at Last

It may be that the once - jolly fat man will have something to laugh about again soon, after many a fearful day at the hands of the doctors.

A practitioner in Virginia says doctors tend to blame illness on overweight simply because it is the easiest defect to diagnose.

The mere fact that there are fat old people around indicates that it isn't dangerous in all cases to be heavy, he says.

In any case, he believes stop-and-start dieting probably does the fatties more harm than their overweight does. Pass those potatoes!

What Joy in Being a Woman?

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — The thing that puzzles men most about women is that they enjoy being women.

Now and then a man, worn out with the office politics of earning a living, has a kind of masculine envy of his wife.

"You got it made, baby," he tells her. "When you get tired of pushing buttons on all these modern labor-saving devices, you can lie down on the couch and rest your worn finger."

"If you don't want to dust a table now, you can dust it later. If you don't feel like sending out the laundry today, you can send it out tomorrow."

"Boy, if I ever get the chance to be born again, I think I'd choose to be born a woman."

Actually, however, that is the last thing on earth he'd choose to be. A lion? Maybe. An elephant? Perhaps. But a woman? Never, never, never!

Now and then I discuss this subject with my wife.

"No indeed."

"Why?"

Fun? For the life of me I can't figure it out. Where's the fun?

Admittedly, a man's life is full of woe. Every morning he has to shave and then decide which sock to put on first—and what necktie to wear. But after he gets these major decisions out of the way the rest of his day is fairly clear sailing.

He is no longer much of a bother to himself.

But a woman is a perpetual nuisance to herself all the hours she is awake.

She is never quite right. She has to endlessly adjust herself.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP) — Another move to bring U.S. Treasury monetary policy closer in step with Federal Reserve credit management and with corporate financing needs will start next week.

Changing the present quarterly issues of one-year Treasury bills to a monthly offering seems at first glance like a routine matter of interest only to government security dealers.

But it could go well beyond that. It is further evidence of the important part monetary policy will play in meeting the problems that becloud the economic outlook.

The change to what the Treasury dubs "a more or less automatic turnover basis" might have a role in tackling the twin financial problems: curbing the outflow of gold and dollars abroad by firmer control over short-term loans and interest rates, and the simultaneous encouragement of economic growth at home through comparatively easy long-term credit.

Views on Television — Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Television viewers who complain about the sameness of series and the stereotyping of characters are invited by ABC to take a look at its new Monday night series, "The Outer Limits."

There they will encounter such unusual villains as inhabitants of another planet who appropriate six square blocks of an American community for experimental purposes; a foreign power that replaces the shoo-in candidate for the U.S. presidency with a double who is one of theirs; a magic machine that can see and hear everything going on within a five-mile area, and monsters by the car load.

The series will go several steps beyond Rod Serling's "Twilight Zone" on CBS which concentrates on the supernatural and the unexplainable. Like "Twilight Zone," it will play its monsters and the visitors from other planets straight.

Dropped into a 7:30 p.m. (EDT) time spot, the series obviously is expected to attract a youthful audience. Producer-writer Joseph Stefano, therefore, has been walking that narrow line which separates titillating entertainment from down-right scary stuff.

Stefano hopes to avoid parental complaints by creating monsters completely divorced from reality.

"Actually, I'd rather have my own 5-year-old see my monsters than a television show in which a bunch of black-jacketed hoods beat up somebody," he added.

The Rev. Alvin Arnold performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with gladioli, chrysanthemums and seven-branch candelabra.

Mrs. Ted Brewster was organist and Miss Betti Bland presented vocal selections.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor length gown of ivory taffeta fashioned with a fitted bodice and long sleeves. Alencon lace enhanced the Sabrina neckline and waistline and the bouffant skirt flowed into a chapel train. A crown of sequins and pearls held her veil of silk illusion and she carried a cascading bouquet of white chrysanthemums and eucalyptus leaves. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace, a gift from the bridegroom.

Mrs. Robert Richmond was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Lana Hayes and Miss Ruth Brigleb. The attendants wore mango peau de soie dresses designed with Sabrina necklines, elbow length sleeves and bellshaped skirts. Their headpieces were circles of matching peau de soie and they carried pompons and button chrysanthemums of yellow mango with ivy.

Mr. Glenn Perrine, Painesville, O., served as best man. Ushers were Mr. Kenneth Taylor, Lorain, and Mr. Marty Reichenhath, Cleveland.

Mrs. Herman, mother of the bride, wore a brown and beige silk dress with white accessories. The mother of the bridegroom wore a blue silk dress with white accessories. Both wore corsages of white gladioli.

A reception was held in the church dining room immediately following the ceremony. Hostesses were Miss Joan Vaughan, Circleville, and Miss Lois Kepler, Akron. Miss Sandy Stevens presided at the guest register.

For their wedding trip to Pompano Beach, Fla., the new Mrs. Warren wore a brown and beige silk suit with a mango gladioli corsage. The couple will reside in Columbus.

The bride attended Ohio University and will continue studies at Ohio State University. She is a member of the Phi Mu Sorority.

Dear Abby: Mother of Highest Form

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter from "MOTHER OF FIVE" who took you to task for calling a woman with a prefabricated family a "mother in the highest form": She asks, "What does a woman who has adopted four children know about the joy of first learning that she is to bear a child? What does she know about the beauty of carrying a child under her heart? What does she know about the thrill of hearing a child's first cry?" I would like to answer her, Abby:

I have known the joy of first learning that I was to bear a child five times, only to lose them all near the end of my time. I even had the thrill once of hearing my child's first cry, only to be told three hours later that I had lost her, too. But I did experience the fulfillment of motherhood because, thanks to an adoption agency, we were "blessed" with three healthy, beautiful, well-mannered, well-adjusted and loving children. We could not love them more if they had been born to us.

DEAR "MOTHER": To the adoption agency goes the credit for "blessing" you with healthy, beautiful children. But they became well-adjusted, well-mannered and loving because of you.

DEAR ABBY: I am a boy who is going to be 15 soon. I have a boy friend my age. One day I went over to his house when he was home alone. He told me to walk in, so of course I did. He shocked me. He was all dressed up in his MOTHER'S clothes. He said, "Take a look at me." Then he said it was "fun", and I should get dressed up in ladies' clothes, too. I said, "Drop dead if that's all you have to do in your spare time. I will see you later." I walked out of the house. I am wondering now—is he sick? What should I do about it? I'm sure his parents don't know. I am all shook up over it.

SHOOK UP
DEAR SHOOK: Tell your parents—but no one else. The boy apparently is "sick".

DEAR ABBY: That "Dr. K."

who said that there were only two cases on record that women over 46 have given birth to babies has a lot to learn. I was the last of nine children, and my mother was 50 when she gave birth to me. Kraut Nice In Chinese Based Dishes

By ALICE DENHOFF

Chop suey, actually an American dish though developed under Chinese cookery influence, is immensely popular, almost any time, any place. And since there are innumerable variations on this theme, it's rather good fun to concoct a new version as a surprise.

Here are some Chinese-based recipes using kraut, chosen because it is so flavorful, so tangy and so crisp.

These easy, economical combinations won't keep you slaving away in the kitchen for hours; they're wonderful for indoor dining or for outdoors, too.

KRAUT CHOP SUEY SLAW AND ROUND DOGS

2 c. sauerkraut, drained
1 (1 lb.) can chop suey vegetables, drained

1 medium green pepper, cut in thin strips

1/4 c. finely chopped onion
1/2 tsp. soy sauce

1 (1 lb. 4 oz.) can sliced pineapple, drained

Paprika
8 frankfurters

Combine first 5 ingredients; toss lightly and chill.

Arrange on serving dish and garnish with pineapple. Dust with paprika to taste.

Serve with Round Dogs:

Cut deep slits across 8 frankfurters without cutting all the way through.

Cook in boiling salted water 10 min. Drain.

Arrange kraut slaw and frankfurters on toasted hamburger buns.

CANTONESE KRAUT-FRANKFURTER SKILLET

lb. butter or margarine
1/2 c. chopped green pepper

2 c. sauerkraut, undrained
1 (1 1/2 oz.) envelope pkg. dehydrated onion soup mix

1-3 c. firmly-packed brown sugar
1/4 c. vinegar

1 lb. frankfurters, diced

Melt butter; add green pepper and cook over low heat 5 min.

Add all ingredients except frankfurters; mix well. Add frankfurters.

Cover and cook over low heat 15 min., stirring frequently.

Serves 4.

ROSY KRAUT-SHRIMP SOUP

1 (10 oz.) can frozen condensed cream of shrimp soup

3/4 c. canned sauerkraut juice

2-3 c. tomato juice

Salt and pepper to taste.

Combine all ingredients.

Heat to serving temperature over low heat, stirring frequently.

Serves 4.

Quick supper dish: heat two cups of medium white sauce with a can of flaked tuna, a buffet size can of drained tiny green peas, a cup of thinly sliced celery crescents and a cup and a half or so of cooked noodles. Do your heating over hot water.

Projects Named At Community Circle Meeting

The Community Circle met yesterday at Prairie Lanes Party Room with 15 members present.

During the business meeting many projects for the coming year were discussed including a bowling pin doorstep for Sept. place mats and an auction, Oct., a Christmas Party and gift exchange in Dec.

The group decided to pay monthly dues of 25 cents and to have a project each month.

Members made paper carnations at the close of the session. Luncheon was served.

The next meeting will be Sept. 19, in the Coliseum.

Attending were Mrs. Ethel Paisgrove, Mrs. Glenn Reinhart, Mrs. Cliff Hickman, Mrs. Doyle Calvert, Mrs. Walter Cummins, Mrs. Jennie Russell, Mrs. John Ankrum, Mrs. C. W. Hedges, Mrs. A. W. Graf, Mrs. L. P. Heiskell, Mrs. E. B. Black, Mrs. Z. L. Eddy, Mrs. C. L. Newlon, Mrs. Clarence Berry and Mrs. Ernest Young.

Couple Plans To Wed Sunday

Plans have been completed for the open church wedding of Miss Joan Gibbs, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. O. F. Gibbs, Ridgewood Drive, to Mr. Donald Wellington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wellington, Ashville.

The ceremony will be solemnized at 6:30 p. m. Sunday in the First Evangelical United Brethren Church. A half hour of pre-nuptial music will precede the ceremony. Rev. Gibbs, father of the bride will officiate.

Personals

Mrs. Curtis Pyle of near Kings- ton will leave Sunday for Holyoke, Mass., for a two-week visit with A-2-C and Mrs. Porter Pyle (Phyllis Slone), who are the parents of a 7-pound 6-ounce daughter born yesterday at the Westover Air Force Base Hospital, Holyoke. This is the first grandchild for the paternal grandparents. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Slone Route 1, Amanda.

Mrs. Maurice Martin, formerly of Circleville, and son Charles, Renwick, Iowa, are visiting her parents in Greenfield O.

Mrs. Alfred Martin, Renwick, Iowa, is visiting her sisters, Miss Vivian Hudnell and Mrs. Myrtle Leist, 301 E. Mound St.

Old-fashioned eggnog still makes a fine mid-morning snack for youngsters. Use a well-beaten egg and a couple of tablespoons of sugar to a cup of milk and add a little vanilla. A little freshly grated nutmeg over the top adds delightful aroma and flavor.

When you make up orange-flavored gelatin dessert, you may substitute orange juice for part of the water called for. One cup of boiling water (for dissolving the gelatin) and one cup of cold orange juice is a good proportion for a three-ounce package.

Unless you have a long serrated-edge knife that will not "mash" sponge or angelfood cake, it's best to "cut" these cakes with two forks back to back.

Dear Abby: Mother of Highest Form

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter from "MOTHER OF FIVE" who took you to task for calling a woman with a prefabricated family a "mother in the highest form": She asks, "What does a woman who has adopted four children know about the joy of first learning that she is to bear a child? What does she know about the beauty of carrying a child under her heart? What does she know about the thrill of hearing a child's first cry?" I would like to answer her, Abby:

I have known the joy of first learning that I was to bear a child five times, only to lose them all near the end of my time. I even had the thrill once of hearing my child's first cry, only to be told three hours later that I had lost her, too. But I did experience the fulfillment of motherhood because, thanks to an adoption agency, we were "blessed" with three healthy, beautiful, well-mannered, well-adjusted and loving children. We could not love them more if they had been born to us.

DEAR "MOTHER": To the adoption agency goes the credit for "blessing" you with healthy, beautiful children. But they became well-adjusted, well-mannered and loving because of you.

DEAR ABBY: I am a boy who is going to be 15 soon. I have a boy friend my age. One day I went over to his house when he was home alone. He told me to walk in, so of course I did. He shocked me. He was all dressed up in his MOTHER'S clothes. He said, "Take a look at me." Then he said it was "fun", and I should get dressed up in ladies' clothes, too. I said, "Drop dead if that's all you have to do in your spare time. I will see you later." I walked out of the house. I am wondering now—is he sick? What should I do about it? I'm sure his parents don't know. I am all shook up over it.

SHOOK UP
DEAR SHOOK: Tell your parents—but not one else. The boy apparently is "sick".

DEAR ABBY: That "Dr. K."

Lucy Does OK As 'President'

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The corporation president arrived for the annual stockholders meeting in a pink golf cart.

Her hair was an orangey glow and she wore a dress that was flowered in violet and magenta.

No doubt about it, Lucille Ball is more chic, and more colorful, than most corporation presidents.
The president of Desilu posed prettily for the photographers, then strode to the stage, followed by eight male officers of the company.

Lucille slipped on her glasses and began reading the president's report.

Business was good, Desilu had three television series going, 10 renters, plus movie tenants. The first 13 weeks of the new fiscal year showed a 44 per cent increase in net income. Production was at 90 per cent capacity.

Miss Ball read answers to expected questions.

Why isn't the stock price higher? That's up to the market. What happened to oil drilling? A slanted drilling had produced, but "the one well bottomed on our property was dry—hmm hmm." How many workers did Desilu have? Basically, 180; full production, 1,600.

Then she replied to questions submitted in writing by stockholders.

Missed was Miss Ball's predecessor and one-time husband, Desi Arnaz. He resigned last November, marking the end of a professional association that flowered with the most successful

THE CHURCH FOR ALL • ALL FOR THE CHURCH

County Bench Non-Attorney Banned from

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Secretary of State Ted W. Brown broke a tie vote on the Geauga County Election Board today to ban County Judge Carl G. Hof-stetter as a candidate for Chardon municipal judge.

The board had split 2-2 over the qualifications of Hofstetter, who is not an attorney.

Brown said his vote was dictated by Ohio law providing that a municipal judge must be an attorney in active practice as his principal occupation for at least five years before taking office.

Hofstetter, a Democrat, became a county judge under a so-called statute shifting justices of the peace, whose offices were abolished, to county courts.

The new Chardon Municipal Court, created at the recent legislative session, will take over jurisdiction of Hofstetter's county court.

Theologians Thankful to God For Blessings from Atheists

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer
Thanks be to God, the Christian scholar said, for the blessings bestowed on the faith by those two atheists, Karl Marx and Sigmund Freud.

It may sound strange for the world's two most noted disbeliev-ers to be cited as sources of value to religion.

Yet among many theologians and philosophers, the thesis often is expressed.

They maintain that Marx, founder of communism, and Freud, founder of psychoanalysis, have contributed stimuli and insights to Judeo-Christianity that were neglected.

A long-standing church concept holds that God frequently may work through anti-religious forces and individuals to correct, lead and strengthen the church.

It was at the Anglican World Congress in Toronto, Canada, this month that a British churchman, Canon Max Warren, stressed that divine guidance may come from outside the Christian fold—from other religions, science, and even atheists.

Christian concern for social righteousness "owes not a little, under God, to the stimulus of Karl Marx," he said.

He said the church also owes thanks to God "for His grace at work in Sigmund Freud," in bringing the light of psychiatry to bear on the healing of men's spirits—their personalities.

Both Marx and Freud spurned religion as wishful thinking. Marx saw it as a kind of mass tranquilizer to obscure the exploitation of common people.

Freud considered it a kind of obsessive neurosis, brought on by desire for paradise beyond the difficulties and death of earthly existence.

Manslaughter Charge Placed against Airman

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Police have filed a traffic manslaughter charge against Staff Sgt. Richard Waldron, 28, of Columbus in the Monday night death of Fritz Ickert, 49, of Mount Vernon. Waldron, stationed at Lockbourne Air Force Base, allegedly precipitated a head-on collision between his car and the one carrying Ickert by crossing the center line in an attempt to pass.

Nevertheless, the psychoanalytic procedures he developed are widely credited with deepening understanding of Christ's teachings, and aiding in their application.

Theologian Paul Tillich says that Freud's approach of accepting, rather than condemning, the guilt-ridden was the very heart of Christ's gospel of forgiveness—the "acceptance of the unacceptable."

As for Marx, the idea of ties between his influence and Christianity is a matter of frequent analysis in academic circles.

In the current issue of Jubilee,
a national Roman Catholic monthly, British Catholic philosopher R.
C. Zaehner says that "Marxism is not old enough yet to realize that it has no essential quarrel with religion."

OSU Honors 1,063 Today At Commencement Rites

mer quarter commencement exercises today for 1,063 students, ceived degrees with honors and distinctions.

gela Vance Russell of Reynolds-burg and Richard K. Jemison of

Rhodes Plans Visits

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—More dates for visits to various Ohio cities by Gov. James A. Rhodes and his cabinet have been set:
Youngstown, Sept. 9; Jackson, Sept. 18; St. Clairsville, Sep. 25 and Warren, Sep. 26.

Jim didn't catch any fish today. Now, on the way home, he can't help casting an envious eye at Tim's haul. It isn't that he begrudges Tim his fish. It's just that, in his heart, he can't help wish that he had been the lucky one.

This is natural, and Jim is young. He's just beginning to learn that you can't always be a winner, but he still finds losing pretty hard to take in stride.

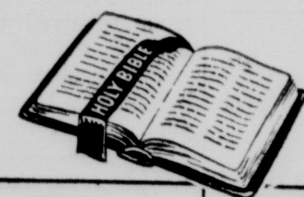

Fortunately, Jim is being given the advantage of Christian training in church during this all-important period in a boy's life when a sense of values is being formed. He is learning lessons which only the Church can give him.

True, Jim is envying a very small item — a string of fish. But envy and greed come to all of us on a larger scale many times throughout life. To meet this challenge squarely, it takes years of self-discipline. That is why religious training can never begin too early.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL • ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4)

For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Local Baha'i Group Lists Weekly Thought

The following is from Baha'i teachings: "From age to age God sends to the earth messengers who are possessed of the Holy Spirit and who manifest God to man. These are the founders of the great religions of the world. Through them the word of God is diffused and the water of life conveyed to humanity. Through them mankind achieves rebirth and all is made new."

Hay Baler Kills Boy In Smithville Mishap

WOOSTER, Ohio (AP) — A 4-year-old boy was crushed to death near Smithville Thursday when he fell from a tractor and was run over by a hay baler being pulled by the tractor. He was Timothy Gerber, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Caleb J. Gerber of Smithville.

1,337 Unemployed Ohioans Get Training

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 1,337 unemployed Ohioans had begun or completed job training courses under the Manpower Development and Training Act by the end of the fiscal year on June 30, the U.S. Labor Department reports. An additional 928 persons are slated for similar courses, the department said.

Ghosts are still considered to roam many historic castles, churches and homes in Britain.

Lucy Does OK As 'President'

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The corporation president arrived for the annual stockholders meeting in a pink golf cart.
Her hair was an orangey glow and she wore a dress that was flowered in violet and magenta. No doubt about it, Lucille Ball is more chic, and more colorful, than most corporation presidents.
The president of Desilu posed prettily for the photographers, then strode to the stage, followed by eight male officers of the company.
Lucille slipped on her glasses and began reading the president's report.

Business was good. Desilu had three television series going, 10 renters, plus movie tenants. The first 13 weeks of the new fiscal year showed a 44 per cent increase in net income. Production was at 90 per cent capacity.

Miss Ball read answers to expected questions.
Why isn't the stock price higher? That's up to the market. What happened to oil drilling? A slanted drilling had produced, but "the one well bottomed on our property was dry—hmm hmmm." How many workers did Desilu have? Basically, 180; full production, 1,600.

Then she replied to questions submitted in writing by stockholders.

Missed was Miss Ball's predecessor and one-time husband, Desi Arnaz. He resigned last November, marking the end of a professional association that flowered with the most successful television series of all time, "I Love Lucy."

Miss Ball, as Desilu's foremost asset, was the logical choice to succeed him.

There being no further business, stockholders were invited to see a "Lucy" show dubbed in Japanese.

THE TURNING POINT IN JACOB'S LIFE, WHEN HE RESPONDED TO GOD'S SPECIAL REVELATION

Scripture—Genesis 26—28.

By N. SPEER JONES

AFTER the death of Abraham, God repeats his covenant to Abraham's son, Isaac. He also commands him not to go to Egypt, despite the famine prevalent in Palestine. The southern part of Palestine, the Negeb, is particularly subject to these famines, caused by drought. Today this area is the site of Israel's oil-drilling.

Curiously, Isaac repeats his father's error in lying to the people among whom he lives, concerning his wife. And once again, the ruler—in this case, Abimelech—proves himself generous in simply rebuking the man for his falsehood. Abimelech goes even further in commanding his people not to harm either Isaac or Rebekah, on

he could hold his brother's heel. The name Jacob means "one who follows at another's heels." Jacob's bad conduct attached to this its worst meaning, to the point where the Hebrew version of Hosea 12:3 uses the name as a verb, meaning "heeled" or got the better by cunning.

Isaac's blessing of his elder son was somewhat dictated by custom, as it had been the traditional right of the first-born to inherit the father's property. Yet God did not intend Jacob to be so slighted, and worked out his intention through Rebekah.

Jacob, notice, first shrinks from participation in his mother's evil scheme, telling her that his father would be sure to

The people of Genar, however, become jealous of the prosperity of this stranger among them—as so often happens—and seek to drive him out by destroying his property, specifically the wells which his father had dug.

Moving on, Isaac digs a successful well at a place today called Beer-sheba, which probably means "well of seven." Now Abimelech, who had sent Isaac away because of his wealth, comes to him and begs a treaty.

From here on, the story centers on Isaac's twin sons, Esau and Jacob. The very name Esau means either "hairy" or "red." Normally the second child of twins follows the first by a time lapse, but in this case Jacob followed so closely that

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP)—A double general blessing and a double pointing out of sins. That's the usual experience of a treaty when it reaches the Senate. It's happening now to President Kennedy's limited nuclear test-ban treaty with Russia.

He naturally endorsed it when he sent it to the Senate which has the task of approving or killing it. Some senators were immediate critics, with questions and misgivings, although they were outnumbered by those in favor.

Next came the blessing from top men in the Kennedy administration as they testified on the treaty at Senate hearings. Then those who had doubts, or were flatly opposed, had their say.

If the picture is beginning to look a little confused, that's usual. But the hearings now are almost two weeks old and those in favor, including 35 American Nobel Prize winners, outnumber the opponents.

It's probably a little annoying to the Kennedy administration, if not disturbing, that some of those who showed less than full enthusiasm or downright opposition were generals.

But so far the testimony has been a balancing act.

Generals balanced generals, the chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission balanced the testimony of a former chairman of the AEC, and scientists balanced scientists.

Dean Rusk, secretary of State, led off for the administration. Being neither a scientist nor a military expert, he backed the treaty mainly from the position of foreign relations.

But he did give assurance that if the Russians tried to cheat on this treaty, which bans all tests except under ground, they'd be found out immediately.

Then Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, with an impressive display of information, flatly said the United States is superior to the Russians in nuclear weapons and will remain that way, ban or no ban.

So far it was a solid front in favor. Then Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, along with the chiefs of the Army, Navy and Air Force, lined up behind the treaty. But then the first little crack showed.

Gen. Curtis LeMay, chief of staff of the Air Force, said he would have been against the treaty if it hadn't already been signed. This was hardly a hearty endorsement. Another high officer was even more sour.

Gen. Thomas S. Power, Strategic Air commander, was utterly opposed. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, chief of military space development, said he could carry out his mission better without a treaty.

Former AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss expressed deep concern that the Russians will cheat, although Rusk and McNamara must have thought they had answered such concern.

The present AEC chairman, Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, a Nobel Prize winner, disagreed with Strauss. He was all in favor of the treaty as being in the best interest of the United States.

Then came the scientists on both sides.

Two of them, Dr. Harold Brown and Dr. Norris E. Bradbury, supported the treaty. Brown is the Pentagon's chief scientist and director of defense and research engineering. Bradbury directs the Los Alamos scientific laboratory, which is chiefly engaged in weapons development.

But Dr. Edward Teller, often credited with being the father of the H-bomb and consistently against a test ban, was against this one. So was Dr. John S. Foster Jr., director of the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory at Berkeley, Calif.

Dr. Willard F. Libby, a Nobel Prize winner and a former member of the AEC, reluctantly approved but expressed concern that the peaceful uses of the atom might be hampered by the ban.

The longer the hearings go on, the longer the balancing act. In the end, the Senate will have to balance the whole business and decide whether to approve.

The people of Gerar, however, become jealous of the prosperity of this stranger among them—as so often happens—and seek to drive him out by destroying his property, specifically the wells which his father had dug.

Moving on, Isaac digs a successful well at a place today called Beer-sheba, which probably means "well of seven." Now Abimelech, who had sent Isaac away because of his wealth, comes to him and begs a treaty.

From here on, the story centers on Isaac's twin sons, Esau and Jacob. The twin sons of Esau means either "hairy" or "red." Normally the second child of twins follows the first by a time lapse, but in this case Jacob followed so closely that he could hold his brother's heel. The name Jacob means "one who follows at another's heels." Jacob's bad conduct attached to this its worst meaning, to the point where the Hebrew version of Hosea 12:3 uses the name as a verb, meaning "heeled" or "got the better by cunning."

Isaac's blessing of his elder son was somewhat dictated by custom, as it had been the traditional right of the first-born to inherit the father's property. Yet God did not intend Jacob to be so slighted, and worked out his intention through Rebekah.

Jacob, notice, first shrinks from participation in his mother's evil scheme, telling her that his father would be sure to recognize him by his skin. The moral here is that although obedience to parents is commanded by God, obedience to God Himself comes first. We should not do what our hearts tell us is wrong, even when so commanded by our parents.

Notice, too, that Rebekah's love for her son, which inspired these evil machinations, caused her to lose him, through Esau's hatred.

Immediately after his sin, Jacob is given God's revelation directly in his dream at Bethel. We are thus never too far from God to be retrieved.

Bethel, about five miles from Jerusalem, means "house of God"—and so it became in Jacob's mind, for he immediately gave himself to God, both in spirit and in property, by his vow of the title.

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP)—A double general blessing and a double pointing out of sins. That's the usual experience of a treaty when it reaches the Senate. It's happening now to President Kennedy's limited nuclear test-ban treaty with Russia.

He naturally endorsed it when he sent it to the Senate which has the task of approving or killing it. Some senators were immediate critics, with questions and misgivings, although they were outnumbered by those in favor.

Next came the blessing from top men in the Kennedy administration as they testified on the treaty at Senate hearings. Then those who had doubts, or were flatly opposed, had their say.

If the picture is beginning to look a little confused, that's usual. But the hearings now are almost two weeks old and those in favor, including 35 American Nobel Prize winners, outnumber the opponents.

It's probably a little annoying to the Kennedy administration, if not disturbing, that some of those who showed less than full enthusiasm or downright opposition were generals.

But so far the testimony has been a balancing act.

Generals balanced generals, the chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission balanced the testimony of a former chairman of the AEC, and scientists balanced scientists.

Dean Rusk, secretary of State, led off for the administration. Being neither a scientist nor a military expert, he backed the treaty mainly from the position of foreign relations.

But he did give assurance that if the Russians tried to cheat on this treaty, which bans all tests except under ground, they'd be found out immediately.

Then Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, with an impressive display of information, flatly said the United States is superior to the Russians in nuclear weapons and will remain that way, ban or no ban.

So far it was a solid front in favor. Then Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, along with the chiefs of the Army, Navy and Air Force, lined up behind the treaty. But then the first little crack showed.

Gen. Curtis LeMay, chief of staff of the Air Force, said he would have been against the treaty if it hadn't already been signed. This was hardly a hearty endorsement. Another high officer was even more sour.

Gen. Thomas S. Power, Strategic Air commander, was utterly opposed. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, chief of military space development, said he could carry out his mission better without a treaty.

Former AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss expressed deep concern that the Russians will cheat, although Rusk and McNamara must have thought they had answered such concern.

The present AEC chairman, Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, a Nobel Prize winner, disagreed with Strauss. He was all in favor of the treaty as being in the best interest of the United States.

Then came the scientists on both sides.

Two of them, Dr. Harold Brown and Dr. Norris E. Bradbury, supported the treaty. Brown is the Pentagon's chief scientist and director of defense and research engineering. Bradbury directs the Los Alamos scientific laboratory, which is chiefly engaged in weapons development.

But Dr. Edward Teller, often credited with being the father of the H-bomb and consistently against a test ban, was against this one. So was Dr. John S. Foster Jr., director of the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory at Berkeley, Calif.

Dr. Willard F. Libby, a Nobel Prize winner and a former member of the AEC, reluctantly approved but expressed concern that American development of the peaceful uses of the atom might be hampered by the ban.

The longer the hearings go on, the longer the balancing act. In the end, the Senate will have to balance the whole business and decide whether to approve.

From the beginning it has seemed sure the Senate would approve. It still seems that way.

NEW YORK — It's always something of a coincidence these days if winners of beauty contests are pretty, too. In the last few years, what with The Bomb and the general seriousness of life, promoters, trying to keep in tune with the times, have been demanding talent as well as pulchritude in their contest entrants.

Since 1940 typically, "Miss America" aspirants have been re-

Mrs. Marilyn Mitchell as she won "Mrs. America" title.

Crash Blamed For 3 Deaths

FOSTORIA, Ohio (AP)—Three persons are dead and one critically injured as the result of a highway collision and an unfortunate sequel to the accident.

Sam Crain, 67, and his wife, Louise, 65, of Romulus, Mich., were killed when their auto collided with a semi-trailer truck at the U. S. 23-U. S. 224 intersection six miles south of here Thursday.

Crain's sister, Elizabeth Crain, 56, of Romulus is in critical condition in Fostoria City Hospital.

Carl Meyer, 47, tow truck operator of Fostoria, died en route to the hospital after suffering a heart attack while clearing the wreckage of the Crain car from the Highway. He died in a Highway Patrol cruiser.

Truck driver Ronald Dague, 37, of Lodi escaped injury in the crash.

Woman, Son Tied to Theft

WAUSEON, Ohio (AP)—Trouble in a migrant farm labor camp near neighboring Delta has culminated in the arrest of a 38-year-old worker and his mother, about 68, on a tentative charge of armed robbery.

John W. Simmons and his mother, Minnie Mae Monk, who gave their home address as Chickasaw, Okla., were arrested by the Highway Patrol and Van Wert police Thursday night as they drove into Van Wert, south of here, on U.S. 127.

Fulton County authorities here had issued an alert after Pito Ortiz and Mary Moore complained the pair had taken $500 at gunpoint.

Fulton County authorities said they would pick up Simmons and his mother from Van Wert County Jail today. Ortiz said he intended to file armed robbery charges against them today.

from homestyling, baking and cooking, to housekeeping and personality.

Mrs. M. had to bake an apple pie, change hairdos twice in a day, and prepare a meal of leftovers for "unexpected company." One of the final questions she had to answer was "Do you think a wife should fix breakfast for a husband who goes to work at the crack of dawn?" She replied, "Yes, if she can go back to bed afterward."

A couple of years ago, the new "Mrs. America," after winning her crown, was asked by a photographer to lift her skirts so that he could get a picture of her legs. She declined firmly, "I don't pose for cheesecake. I bake it."

The judges of "Mrs. America" today are no longer looking for a woman of perfect physical proportions, but rather an outstanding wife, cook, homemaker and general pillar of the community.

As Bert Nevins, who originated and ran the "Mrs. America" contest until this spring, when he sold his rights in it for a hefty $1 million, recently replied when asked about the contest, "The Mrs. America" contest is no longer a beauty contest in any sense of the word."

The first "Mrs. America" contest was held in 1938, and the entrants, as they were for a number of years after, were models, show girls and the like. The first winner, Mrs. Margaret Chamberlain, was a model, selected on beauty alone. No one knew, or cared, whether she could fry an egg or wash out a pair of socks.

"Yes, I sometimes long for the good old days," Mall Dodson, the veteran press agent for Atlantic City, recently pined. "Things were really different then. Take the 'Miss America' contest in 1948. Vera Ralston was 'Miss Kansas.' She was in front of the other girls all the way."

"I remember our official photographer lining up the entrants for a straight-down-the-line shot. Everytime he'd look down the line he'd yell, 'Step back, Miss Ralston. Step back to even up the line.'"

Cable Price Increased

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp., which has a plant at Newark, Ohio, has announced an increase in the price of its steel-reinforced aluminum cable. Effective today, the cable will cost 1 1/2 cents more per pound of steel content.

Blair House, the President's official guest house in Washington, is being restored, refurbished and centrally air conditioned under the guidance of a Blair House Fine Arts Committee.

$351,875 More Cash Is Revealed

MADISON, N.Y. (AP)—An additional $351,875 in cash has been found in a wealthy widow's safe, from which an estimated $250,000 was stolen earlier this week.

Police said they had broken open an inner compartment in the five-foot-high safe and discovered the new sum.

Mrs. Grove Hinman, the widow, said she had not known that money, apparently left by her husband, was there. Its discovery does not change the estimate of the amount missing, police said. Thieves had knocked the outer safe door off to obtain the $250,000, apparently while Mrs. Hinman was away from home Sunday. Mrs. Hinman explained after the theft that she generally kept some money at home because this upstate village of 325 has no bank.

Troopers, racking down clues to the theft, burned away layers of steel plate Wednesday night to open the second section, since Mrs. Hinman said she did not have the combination.

Hinman, who died in 1961, has been described as an eccentric automobile dealer and farmer who carried large sums of money.

Eric Johnston, Presidential Aide, Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eric A. Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America and a business leader and government trouble shooter for nearly three decades, is dead at 66.

He was best known, perhaps, as head of the motion picture industry, serving 18 years as president of the Motion Picture Association of America. His annual salary was $100,000.

In 1942 he attained national prominence on election as president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. In the past he led a drive for business cooperation with President Franklin D. Roosevelt and an end to Roosevelt-baiting. He served four terms gaining stature as an eloquent spokesman for the free enterprise system.

At the requests of Roosevelt and President Harry S. Truman, Johnston, a Republican, served during the war on the National Labor-Management Advisory Committee, the Inter-American Economic Development Commission, the Economic Stabilization Board, the War Manpower Commission and the War Mobilization and Reconversion Commission.

Tribe Books 15-Game Home Stand

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Indians open a 15-game home stand tonight after having shown the New York Yankees a thing or two about power hitting.

The Tribe tangles with Boston in the first of a four-game series. Pete Ramos (6-5) is scheduled to pitch for Cleveland against Earl Wilson (9-15).

Fred Whitfield, Tito Francona and Willie Kirkland each slammed a homer Thursday as the Indians whipped the Yankees, 7-4. Kirkland also had a triple, and so did Max Alvis. The rookie third baseman also doubled and singled as Cleveland backed up Mudcat Grant's pitching with an 11-hit attack.

Gary Bell relieved Grant (10-11) in the eighth inning and retired all five batters he faced. The victory gave the Indians a split in the four-game set.

All of New York's runs came on a bases-loaded homer by John Blanchard in the sixth. The blast followed a single by Tony Kubek and walks by Tom Tresh and Elston Howard.

The Tribe scored six runs off Ralph Terry, who left in the fourth. Francona drove his eighth homer of the year into the right field seats in the first inning. One out later, Whitfield put one into the third deck in right, his 15th homer.

2500 Trapshooters Open Fire In Grand American Handicap

Vandalia, Ohio (AP)—The nation's finest trapshooters, some 2,500 of them, went after the sports' move coveted crown today at the 64th Grand American.

On tap was the Grand American Handicap, a 100-target event with a prize of more than $8,000 awaiting the winner. He'll probably be a novice from nowhere, for the hotshots have little chance.

The classic, feature of the week-long clay carnival, has been won by a couple of 14-year-old boys and by men nearing the four-score mark. No woman ever has triumphed, and no one ever has won it twice. But many of the former kings were back to try to break the tradition.

Thursday's big prize, some $8,000, went to William Lawless, a 30-year-old ex-Kentuckian from Cambridge, Ohio, who owned his first shotgun as a 7-year-old and won the event with a firearm he got in a swap just a week ago.

Lawless fired a 99 from 23 yards as the 1,933rd shooter in a field of 2,005, wrecking the hopes of 12 others who had racked up scores of 98 in the early going.

In the crowded shootout for second place, the honors went to 14-year-old Tim Phillips of Hamler, Ohio, who broke 50 straight in the added test. Tim also captured the junior title by breaking 24 of 25.

Those with 98s included Eugene Laurisky of Murray City (Hocking County), Gerald L. Sager of East Canton.

Mrs. Mary M. Sullivan of Indianapolis won the women's championship with a 98. She finished a target ahead of 15-year-old Laura Louise Mote of New Madison, Ohio, who the day before had broken 197 of 200 in winning the women's national 16-yard race.

James J. Bourgeois of Jackson, Miss., paced the professionals with 96.

Pro Cagers Plan Benefit For Stokes

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP)—It's been five years since a rare brain illness cut down the bright pro basketball career of an amiable giant from Pennsylvania—Maurice Stokes.

His friends in the National Basketball Association remember him well. They're contributing the fifth annual benefit game here tonight for Big Mo to help him toward the day he can leave Christ Hospital in Cincinnati.

Stokes has made what his doctor's call gradual progress. The swift illness left him paralyzed at first and unable to speak.

He's learned to speak some simple words, and has worked hard to regain some movement in arms and legs, to the point where he can walk with a body brace. He can laugh.

Jack Twyman, veteran Cincinnati Royals star and Stokes' teammate when Big Mo was rounding into an NBA marvel, became his legal guardian. Twyman developed the yearly game to help pay Stokes' big hospital bills. Most of the top NBA stars come here for the game, including Bill Russell, Wilt Chamberlain, Oscar Robertson, Bob Pettit and retired Bob Cousy.

Twyman said Stokes is cheerful, uncomplaining and grimly determined to be able to walk out of the hospital.

In six National Football League seasons, quarterback Milt Plum of the Detroit Lions has given up only 59 interceptions in 1,408 passing attempts.

Ohio Weekend Fish Chances Labeled Good

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Division of Wildlife had good news for fishermen today.

"Conditions are generally good throughout the state and experienced anglers are taking fish in both lakes and streams," the division said in its weekly report.

The conditions by sections:

NORTHWEST—Many lakes and streams are clear and very low making fishing success difficult. Some lakes furnishing fair to good catches of bass, bluegills and catfish. Stream fishermen in Seneca County report good smallmouth bass fishing.

EAST CENTRAL AND SOUTH-EAST—Burr Oak and Dow lakes, Athens County, continue to provide good fishing success. Fishermen have been doing all right too, at Celindene and Tappan, Harrison County; Clouse, Perry; Forked Run, Meigs, and Willis Creek, Coshocton. Stream fishermen taking catfish from the Muskingum River and several other streams.

CENTRAL AND SOUTH—Local rains muddled a number of other streams and except for a few catfish, fishermen have had little success. Most lakes are in better condition but fishing pressure has been extremely low.

SOUTHWEST—The best fishing is apparently at Englewood Dam, Montgomery County; Richwood Lake, Union, and Grant, Brown. Streams furnishing very little success and many are in rather poor condition.

Ohio Weekend Fish Chances Labeled Good

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Division of Wildlife had good news for fishermen today.

"Conditions are generally good throughout the state and experienced anglers are taking fish in both lakes and streams," the division said in its weekly report.

The conditions by sections: NORTHWEST—Many lakes and streams are clear and very low making fishing success difficult. Some lakes furnishing fair to good catches of bass, bluegills and catfish. Stream fishermen in Seneca County report good smallmouth bass fishing.

EAST CENTRAL AND SOUTH-EAST—Burr Oak and Dow lakes, Athens County, continue to provide good fishing success. Fishermen have been doing all right too, at Celendening and Tappan, Harrison County; Clouse, Perry; Forked Run, Meigs, and Willis Creek, Coshocton. Stream fishermen taking catfish from the Muskingum River and several other streams.

CENTRAL AND SOUTH—Local rains muddied a number of other streams and except for a few catfish, fishermen have had little success. Most lakes are in better condition but fishing pressure has been extremely low.

SOUTHWEST—The best fishing is apparently at Englewood Dam, Montgomery County; Richwood Lake, Union, and Grant, Brown. Streams furnishing very little success and many are in rather poor condition.

SE Ohio Parks Popularity High

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A survey of four state parks in southeastern Ohio by the Ohio Division of Parks shows that camping continues to be one of the favorite "fun-under-the-sun" activities.

The parks checked were Burr Oak in Athens and Morgan counties; Forked Run, Meigs County; Hocking Hills, Hocking County and Lake Hope in Vinton County. District Park Manager S. I. Bastian reports that camper days at Burr Oak are up from 10,000 to 16,000 in the first seven months of this year; Forked Run, 2,500 to 7,200; Hocking Hills, 11,500 to 25,725; and Lake Hope, 8,100 to 10,700.

Special rules and regulations for watercraft using the Hocking and Sandusky rivers and the Dillon Reservoir are now in effect. A six-mile-an-hour speed limit for all powercraft has been set for the Hocking River in that portion extending upstream 3,000 feet from its junction with the Ohio River.

The rules for the Sandusky River apply to that portion north of Fremont. Three zones, distinguished by buoys, permit water skiing, two other marked zones are limited to 10-miles an hour and two small zones on one side of the channel are closed to all craft for protection of swimmers.

Regulations for Dillon Reservoir will permit use of unlimited horsepower in craft used in speed boating and water skiing on certain portions of the lake, limiting speed on other parts to 10 miles an hour.

The champion white crappie fisherman in Ohio is Zenith Goble of Bowling Green. The fish he caught in the Maumee River, near Grand Rapids on June 2 has been added to the list of Ohio Record Fish by the Ohio Outdoor Writers, Inc.

Goble's catch weighed 2 pounds, 13 ounces and measured 17 1/2 inches.

Dan Armbruster, district fish management supervisor for the Division of Wildlife, says fishermen are providing much helpful information by returning division tag taken from captured fish. "These returned tags provide our biologists with a wealth of information concerning fish growth movements and related facts," Armbruster said.

The Division of wildlife reports that free-running dogs continue to take a heavy toll of wildlife. The latest report tells of a year-old doe (deer) carrying an unborn fawn, falling over an embankment after being run by dogs. Both the doe and fawn died. The incident occurred near Clarington, Monroe County.

Landowners interested in improving their lands for wildlife must order their planting stock from the division of wildlife by Sept. 1. County game protectors

Browns Head For Frisco, Exhibitions

HIRAM, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Browns headed for the West Coast today after nearly five weeks of training here with several problems still unsolved.

Losers of their first two exhibition games under their new coach, Blanton Collier, the Browns will meet the San Francisco 49ers Sunday afternoon. They will play the Rams in Los Angeles Aug. 31 before returning to Cleveland, where they will continue training at League Park.

Collier is concerned about the knee injury to Monte Clark, the offensive tackle obtained from Dallas to replace the retired Mike McCormack, other problems are a slow start by quarterbacks Jim Ninowski and Frank Ryan; an overall lack of speed among the pass receivers; and the fact that the Browns scored a total of only 17 points in their losses to the Detroit Lions and Baltimore Colts.

One bright spot is the work of Larry Benz, who took over the left safety spot filled for the last three seasons by Don Fleming. Fleming was killed in an off-season construction work accident in Florida. Benz is smaller than Fleming but has an excellent chance to be the regular at the safety position.

Base-Running Boner Almost Sinks Cardinals

Curt Flood Misses 3rd Sack, Retreats, But St. Louis Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The St. Louis Cardinals, almost left high and dry by Curt Flood, took off for Houston today after salvaging the finale of a three-game set with National League-leading Los Angeles and temporarily at least, throwing the Dodgers' runaway chances overboard.

Despite a base running boner by the sure-footed Flood, the Cardinals kept the Dodgers from building their lead to a whopping 8 1/2 games by edging the front-runners 3-2 Thursday night in a game punctuated by missed opportunities.

Flood, racing around third on Bill White's hit with the score tied 2-2 in the fifth, missed the bag and had to retreat. By the time Flood, who had four hits for the night, retraced his steps, it was too late to try and score.

As it turned out, the Cardinals snapped the tie in the sixth on a double by Ken Boyer and Julian Javier's single, ending the Dodgers' winning streak at seven games and trimming their lead to 6 1/2 games.

The Cardinals, who came into Los Angeles only 5 1/2 games back and riding a three game winning streak, now will be looking to make up ground against the Colts while the Dodgers tackle the suddenly potent Milwaukee Braves.

The Braves, who have moved into sixth place by winning eight of their last 10, lost to third-place San Francisco 8-0 as Juan Marichal posted his 19th victory despite a grand slam homer by Milwaukee's Joe Torre. The Giants are 7 1/2 back.

In the only other NL game scheduled, Roberto Clemente hit a grand slam homer in Pittsburgh's 9-3 belting of the Chicago Cubs.

Cleveland knocked off the American League-leading New York Yankees 7-4. Boston crushed the Chicago White Sox 11-2. Baltimore defeated the Los Angeles Angels 5-1 and Kansas City whipped Washington 6-2. Minnesota and Detroit were not scheduled.

The Cardinals scored twice in the first against Dodgers starter Don Drysdale, 16-14. Dick Groat was hit by a pitch moved to third on a single by White and scored on Stan Musial's grounder before Boyer singled White home. The Dodgers came back to tie in the third against Ernie Broglio, 14-8, on run-producing singles by Wally Moon and Tommy Davis. After that they were unable to come up with the key hit.

Marichal, 19-6, was tagged for Torre's grand slam in the eighth, but by that time it was too late for the Braves Felipe Alou's three-run homer in a four run third inning rally against Tony Colinger, 8-8, had put the Giants ahead to stay.

SE Ohio Parks Popularity High

The parks checked were Burr Oak in Athens and Morgan counties; Forked Run, Meigs County; Hocking Hills, Hocking County and Lake Hope in Vinton County. District Park Manager S. I. Bastian reports that camper days at Burr Oak are up from 10,000 to 16,000 in the first seven months of this year; Forked Run, 2,500 to 7,200; Hocking Hills, 11,500 to 25,725; and Lake Hope, 8,100 to 10,700.

Special rules and regulations for watercraft using the Hocking and Sandusky rivers and the Dillon Reservoir are now in effect. A six-mile-an-hour speed limit for all powercraft has been set for the Hocking River in that portion extending upstream 3,000 feet from its junction with the Ohio River.

The rules for the Sandusky River apply to that portion north of Fremont. Three zones, distinguished by buoys, permit water skiing, two other marked zones are limited to 10-miles - an hour and two small zones on one side of the channel are closed to all craft for protection of swimmers. Regulations for Dillon Reservoir will permit use of unlimited horsepower in craft used in speed boating and water skiing on certain portions of the lake, limiting speed on other parts to 10 miles an hour.

The champion white crappie fisherman in Ohio is Zenith Goble of Bowling Green. The fish he caught in the Maumee River, near Grand Rapids on June 2 has been added to the list of Ohio Record Fish by the Ohio Outdoor Writers, Inc.

Goble's catch weighed 2 pounds, 13 ounces and measured 17½ inches.

Dan Armbruster, district fish management supervisor for the Division of Wildlife, says fishermen are providing much helpful information by returning division tag taken from captured fish. "These returned tags provide our biologists with a wealth of information concerning fish growth movements and related facts," Armbruster said.

The Division of wildlife reports that free-running dogs continue to take a heavy toll of wildlife. The latest report tells of a year-old doe (deer) carrying an unborn fawn, falling over an embankment after being run by dogs. Both the doe and fawn died. The incident occurred near Clarington, Monroe County.

Land owners interested in improving their lands for wildlife must order their planting stock from the division of wildlife by Sept. 1. County game protectors

Browns Head For Frisco, Exhibitions

HIRAM, Ohio (AP)—The Cleveland Browns headed for the West Coast today after nearly five weeks of training here with several problems still unresolved.

Liners of their first two exhibition games under their new coach, Blanton Collier, the Browns will meet the San Francisco 49ers Sunday afternoon. They will play the Rams in Los Angeles Aug. 31 before returning to Cleveland, where they will continue training at League Park.

Collier is concerned about the knee injury to Monte Clark, the offensive tackle obtained from Dallas to replace the retired Mike McCormack, other problems are a slow start by quarterbacks Jim Ninowski and Frank Ryan; an overall lack of speed among the pass receivers, and the fact that the Browns scored a total of only 17 points in their losses to the Detroit Lions and Baltimore Colts.

One bright spot is the work of Larry Benz, who took over the left safety spot filled for the last three seasons by Don Fleming. Fleming was killed in an off-season construction work accident in Florida. Benz is smaller than Fleming but has an excellent chance to be the regular at the safety position.

Clifton McNeil was the early sensation here with his extreme speed and still is in a battle with Tom Hutchinson, the Browns' first draft choice from Kentucky, for a flanker spot.

Jackson Booster Meet
The Jackson Twp. Booster Club will meet 8 p. m. Monday at Jackson Twp. School.

Former major league outfielder Al Zarilla is now a scout for the Cincinnati Reds in California.

should be contacted for approval of the site.

The Division of Wildlife says approximately 3,600 acres of reclaimed strip - mined land in Harrison and Jefferson counties will be available to hunters this fall. The Jefferson County area lies approximately eight miles southeast of Bloomfield, the Harrison County site, about five miles northeast of Cadiz.

Base-Running Boner Almost Sinks Cardinals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The St. Louis Cardinals, almost left high and dry by Curt Flood, took off for Houston today after salvaging the finale of a three-game set with National League-leading Los Angeles and temporarily at least, throwing the Dodgers' runaway chances overboard.

Despite a base running boner by the sure-footed Flood, the Cardinals kept the Dodgers from building their lead to a whopping 8½ games by edging the front-runners 3-2 Thursday night in a game punctuated by missed opportunities.

Flood, racing around third on Bill White's hit with the score tied 2-2 in the fifth, missed the bag and had to retreat. By the time Flood, who had four hits for the night, retraced his steps, it was too late to try and score. As it turned out, the Cardinals snapped the tie in the sixth on a double by Ken Boyer and Julian Javier's single, ending the Dodgers' winning streak at seven games and trimming their lead to 6½ games.

The Cardinals, who came into Los Angeles only 5½ games back and riding a three game winning streak, now will be looking to make up ground against the Coifs while the Dodgers tackle the suddenly potent Milwaukee Braves.

The Braves, who have moved into sixth place by winning eight of their last 10, lost to third-place San Francisco 8-0 as Juan Mari-chal posted his 19th victory despite a grand slam homer by Milwaukee's Joe Torre. The Giants are 7½ back.

In the only other NL game scheduled, Roberto Clemente hit a grand slam homer in Pittsburgh's 9-3 belting of the Chicago Cubs.

Cleveland knocked off the American League-leading New York Yankees 7-4. Boston crushed the Chicago White Sox 11-2. Baltimore defeated the Los Angeles Angels 5-1 and Kansas City whipped Washington 6-2. Minnesota and Detroit were not scheduled.

The Cardinals scored twice in the first against Dodgers starter Don Drysdale, 16-14. Dick Groat was hit by a pitch moved to third on a single by White and scored on Stan Musial's grounder before Boyer singled White home. The Dodgers came back to tie in the third against Ernie Brozile, 14-8, on run-producing singles by Wally Moon and Tommy Davis. After that they were unable to come up with the key hit.

Marichal, 19-6, was tagged for Torre's grand slam in the eighth, but by that time it was too late for the Braves Felipe Alou's three-run homer in a four run third inning rally against Tony Colinger, 8-8, had put the Giants ahead to stay.

Tabulations Due Sept. 6

Farmers Urged To Take Part In ASC Vote; Nominees Listed

Farmers of Pickaway County were urged today by the local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee to take part in the election of their county ASC Community Committee.

Ballots for the election have been mailed to qualified farmers taking part in one or more of the programs administered by the ASC committees. They are to be returned to the ASCS office here by Sept. 4. All 15 townships in the county are represented on the voting forms.

Galen D. Mowery, ASC County Committee chairman, explained that this annual election is one in which all eligible farmers have an opportunity to select the best men available for work as ASC committee members. By doing this, he said, they help assure good service to themselves and sound administration of ASCS programs in the community and county.

The committee to be elected consists of three regular members and two alternates. The chairman, vice chairman and regular member of the elected committee will serve respectively as delegate, alternate delegate to the county convention where the ASC county committee will be chosen.

A PERSON may vote in the community election if he or she is of legal voting age, is a farm owner, tenant or sharecropper, and is taking part or is eligible to take part in one of the farm programs administered by the committee. Also eligible is a person not of legal voting age, but in charge of the farming operations on an entire farm. In the case of joint ownership by two or more individuals, each is an eligible voter.

There are some limitations on

voting. If a voter has an interest in a farm, or farms, in more than one community in a county, he may select the community in which he wishes to vote, but the vote may be cast in only one community of the county. Voting by proxy is not allowable.

In the case of partnership farms, the vote may be cast by either partner, and a corporation's vote may be cast by an authorized officer of the corporation.

Because of the vital part that the ASC community and county committees play in the farming affairs of the county, chairman Mowery said, it is important that each farmer give serious consideration to the men elected to these posts. It is highly desirable that the committeemen be currently active farmers who are best qualified for the committee work and who will be representatives of the various sections and types of agriculture in the community.

Nominees for the mail vote are: Circleville Twp. — Orville Beers, Wayne Bower, Ralph W. Dunkel, Walter Eccard, L. Robert Liston Jr., Ralph McDill.

Darby Twp. — James C. Bayes, Darrell Furniss, Floyd Mouser, James Musselman, Thomas Musselman, Pat Neal and Charles Shannon.

Deercreek Twp. — Joseph Carle, Robert E. Chester Jr., Chester Clark, Clarence Clark, Lovell Hammond, James Sykes.

Defendant Is Handled Like Freight

CLEVELAND (AP) — Charles E. Kinsey made probably the strangest entry into U.S. District Court ever seen.

A hand truck and two freight elevators were used by deputy U. S. marshals Thursday to get the 43-year-old Kinsey to the third floor of the building, where he pleaded guilty to a charge of selling "pep pills" to truck drivers.

The novel means of access to the courtroom was necessary because the defendant weighs 585 pounds and has difficulty walking.

Kinsey, who told deputy marshals he weighed 880 pounds once but had "managed to reduce a little," was released under $500 personal bond after Judge James C. Connell deferred sentence pending a probation report.

To get to the courtroom, Kinsey, operator of Tiny's Truck Stop at Oceola, sat on a heavy wooden box on a hand truck outside the building. The truck was rolled onto a freight elevator that descends from the sidewalk. Kinsey was taken to the basement on the sidewalk elevator and then to the inside freight elevator which took him to the third floor.

Altman was known during his lifetime for his distrust of banks. A statement from family attorneys William Sutton of Pittsburgh and F. L. Shipman of Troy Thursday explained:

"The evidence available indicates that all of the funds have been buried since the early 1930s, and this is borne out by dates of all currencies.

"Mr. Altman had mentioned to many of his friends and acquaintances through the years that after the bank closings in the early 1930s he ceased to trust banks."

The attorneys also said Altman, born in Manor, Pa., had operated a coal business earlier in his career and sold coal during World War I to U.S. Steel Corp. They said profits from the coal business probably formed the foundation for his wealth and "probably constituted the source of the buried funds."

If the money was buried in the '30s, it evidently was handled at least once afterward, for the money was tied in small bundles each wrapped in copies of October 1945 newspapers.

Other money was found recently in safety deposit boxes at the mills as further evidence of Altman's dislike for banks. Four fires hit the plant during the 1940s, and some of the bills found in one of the safety deposit boxes were scorched and plastered together. These were sent to the U.S. Treasury for salvage.

Altman, despite his acknowledged eccentricities, was no miserly skinflint, according to old friends and employees.

"He was a very generous man," one friend of 30 years asserted. One of the digging crew said the old man didn't like to be called "Boss," but insisted that everyone call him Stacy. He said Altman pitched in with all kinds of work, even helping unload trucks.

'PT 109' Tells of Kennedy's Combat Exploits during WWII

By Richard L. Davis

Bringing to the screen the combat exploits of President John F. Kennedy as a Navy PT-boat commander in the South Pacific during World War II "PT 109", the first-run feature in color and wide-screen opens Sunday for a week's engagement at the North Auto Theater.

Cliff Robertson, who won the coveted role over more than 100 performers, portrays Lt. (j.g.) J.F. Kennedy in the big-scale action epic. Ty Hardin, James Gregory, Robert Culp and Grant Williams are co-starred as rugged PT-boat men who fought with Lt. Kennedy in the historic battle for the Solomon Islands.

The story of "PT 109" begins April 7, 1943 when a Japanese aerial bombing attack welcomes Lt. Kennedy to the Solomons and continues through the remarkable events that followed the night and early morning of Aug. 2, 1943, when the battle-scarred patrol-torpedo boat 109 was cut in two by a Japanese destroyer, the Amagiri.

Kennedy spent 30 of the next 39 hours in the water, puffing a badly burned crew-member to the safety of a small island, then swimming out to sea again at night in the hope of signaling a PT-boat on patrol duty. The crew of the 109 was given up for dead, but Kennedy and the other survivors lived to report the fascinating story of their thrilling rescue—and to fight again against the Japanese.

An added attraction will be "Jacqueline Kennedy's Asian Journey", the motion picture of the First Lady's visit to India and Pakistan last March. The 30-minute film presents the highlights of her tour in color.

The Starlight Cruise-In Theater beginning Sunday, will feature "King Kong vs. Godzilla" starring

Farmers Urged To Take Part In ASC Vote; Nominees Listed

Farmers of Pickaway County were urged today by the local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee to take part in the election of their county ASC Community Committee.

Ballots for the election have been mailed to qualified farmers taking part in one or more of the programs administered by the ASC committees. They are to be returned to the ASCS office here by Sept. 4. All 15 townships in the county are represented on the voting forms.

Galen D. Mowery, ASC County Committee chairman, explained that this annual election is one in which all eligible farmers have an opportunity to select the best men available for work as ASC committee members. By doing this, he said, they help assure good service to themselves and sound administration of ASCS programs in the community and county.

The committee to be elected consists of three regular members and two alternates. The chairman, vice chairman and regular member of the elected committee will serve respectively as delegate, alternate delegate to the county convention where the ASC county committee will be chosen.

A PERSON may vote in the community election if he or she is of legal voting age, is a farm owner, tenant or sharecropper, and is taking part or is eligible to take part in one of the farm programs administered by the committee. Also eligible is a person not of legal voting age, but in charge of the farming operations on an entire farm. In the case of joint ownership by two or more individuals, each is an eligible voter.

There are some limitations on

voting. If a voter has an interest in a farm, or farms, in more than one community in a county, he may select the community in which he wishes to vote, but the vote may be cast in only one community of the county. Voting by proxy is not allowable.

Because of the vital part that the ASC community and county committees play in the farming affairs of the county, chairman Mowery said, it is important that each farmer give serious consideration to the men elected to these posts. It is highly desirable that the committeemen be currently active farmers who are best qualified for the committee work and who will be representatives of the various sections and types of agriculture in the community.

Nominees for the mail vote are: Circleville Twp. — Orville Beers, Wayne Bower, Ralph W. Dunkel, Walter Eccard, L. Robert Liston Jr., Ralph McDill.

Michael Keith, James Yagi and Takashima. The second half of the double feature program will be "The Man Who Could Cheat Death".

New advances in special effects techniques enhance the terror of the new King Kong and Godzilla as greatly as the atomic age towers over King Kong's birthtime in the thirties.

Besides the 30-year birthday of King Kong, the film also marks the 30th Anniversary picture of its Japanese producers, Toho Company Ltd.

The featured "monster movie" was filmed in color.
